

Dear Director,

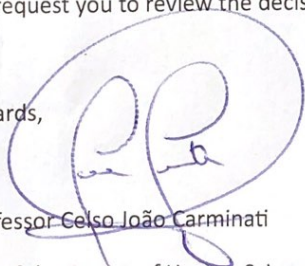

I would like to highlight the visibility and innovation of the PhD Course in Global Studies, and the very important activities of the Center of Global Studies, with its different research lines, groups, and themes, as well as the publications that express the commitment to scientific dissemination to world societies.

The Center of Global Studies stands out with its attentive look at the movements of societies, not only in the local and national levels, but including cultural and scientific contexts worldwide, deepening and contributing with new theories and interpretations of reality, establishing a deep connection with social subjects, whose themes are no longer national, but transnational, and inter- and multidisciplinary.

As a member of the International Commission, having contributed to the birth and consolidation of this important Research Center since the last decade, both participating as a member of the Scientific Council in seminars and of the International Forum for Global Studies, as well as with publications and as a guest lecturer, I would like to highlight the contributions of the scientific activities carried out and their positive impacts on the academic environment among the participating countries.

For these reasons and considering that the Center for Global Studies is made up of exponents and reference researchers, with academic projection of science and culture of Portugal and the world, I request you to review the decision made in the opinion.

Best regards,

PhD Professor Celso João Carminati

Director of the Centre of Human Sciences and Education (2021-2025)
